Privacy Statement

Your information is private. That privacy is critical to protect.

The philosophy of Legal Firm Web Host, LLC. is to make every effort to keep your information private and not share your information with any other company. After all, the best way to keep a secret is not to tell anyone.

Legal Firm Web Host will only share your information when absolutely necessary to deliver the service you purchased. For example, your contact information is required when registering your domain name. This information is sent to our registrar and to ICANN (who manages domain name registration). The purpose is to get you your domain name for customers to easily find you.

Our complete privacy statement is being edited and will be available soon.
